Ladic told Metro “We’redefinitely having a better

the increase in graffiti com-

The increase in graffiti com-

to the 311 smartphone app.

Shooting the needless end to a troubled life: Friend

Deerfoot death.

Friend says that meth addiction partly to blame for auto theft, fatal confrontation

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Jason Gary Roy was broke, in love and trying to combat a long-standing crystal-meth addiction when police fired multiple shots into the stolen truck he was driving, killing him and bringing to an end a dangerous chase along Calgary's busiest thoroughfare on Friday.

That was the picture painted by James Tortorelli, who described Roy, 33, as his best friend on Wednesday.

The pair met a decade ago while both were undergoing addiction treatment in B.C.

"He was a down-to-earth, nice guy. He was my bro," Tortorelli said. "He was honest. He was trying to better his life and he didn't want to hurt anybody."

But police say Roy had struck multiple vehicles while speeding in a stolen Ford F-350 truck, attempted to cross a median along Deerfoot Trail and, when unsuccessful, proceeded to head in the wrong direction up the highway.

Tortorelli said Roy had worked hard to shake his addiction. He said Roy was also madly in love with Ashley Silver, whom he identified as the female passenger riding in the truck when police pinned it, attempted to effect an arrest and then opened fire.

See anything?

Investigators with the Alberta Serious Incident Response Team have put out a request for public assistance as they continue to probe the shooting.

Silver was rushed to hospital in critical condition; her current status is unknown. Both she and Roy were charged by RCMP last year for a similar incident that saw multiple vehicles used to ram police cruisers near Canmore.

Tortorelli chalked up much of his friend's actions to making money the only way he knew how: Criminal activity. He said issues with meth had kept him from holding down a proper job and that he was attempting to provide for Silver and his family.

"He was planning on straightening out.... He was planning on working legit with his uncle," Tortorelli said.

Tortorelli also questioned whether it was necessary for police to use lethal force.

Police Chief Rick Hanson said over the weekend that Roy still attempted to ram them even once the stolen truck — tantamount to a "small tank" — had been pinned by cruisers.

But Tortorelli also said he didn't necessarily fault the responding officers, who "were just doing their jobs."

"The whole situation was dangerous," he said. "I'm not saying what Jason did was right; I'm not saying what the cops did was right.... Bottom line is an awesome guy, who didn't deserve to die, died."

Jason Gary Roy, seen in this photo posted to Facebook in January, was shot multiple times by Calgary police. METRO FILE

Accusations fly in impromptu trustee call to Metro reporter

Calgary Board of Education. Critics say audio shows board members divided

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Critics were quick to suggest Wednesday the transcript of an impromptu call between six Calgary public-school trustees and Metro suggests the board is attempting to shut both the public and media out of board business.

The call Tuesday, placed by Calgary Board of Education trustee Trina Hurdman at the request of a fellow board member, came in response to an article published the day prior about trustees denying a push by representative Amber Stewart to publish the organization's 2015-18 capital plan two weeks early.

Editor's note

CBE trustee Joy Bowen-Eyre repeatedly referred to Metro reporter Jeremy Nolaïs acting as the "eighth trustee," but declined to specify what she meant despite being asked for clarification previously. A call placed to Bowen-Eyre to help clarify the matter Wednesday was also not returned.

Four trustees claimed to have ruled Stewart's motion out of order as opposed to voting it down.

The conversation spanned over 20 minutes — allegations swirled of trustees using the media to get their way and attempts made to undermine the board's effort to appear as a "united voice."

Two representatives, Joy Bowen-Eyre and Lynn Ferguson, refused to identify themselves when asked.

Larry Leach, chair of the Association for Responsive Trusteeship in Calgary Schools, reviewed a full copy of the conference-call transcript Wednesday. He deemed the remarks of trustee Judy Hehr, specifically, "very troubling," adding they left him with the impression she believes the media should only report on education matters when given the all clear by elected representatives.

"Instead of the trustees doing the public's work and being public with what they're doing, they're trying to tell a reporter how to do his job," he said. "That's troubling because, in a democracy, the press has an extremely important role to play. In many cases, the citizens of Calgary's only connection to the Calgary Board of Education is through the press."

Hehr took issue with the actions of Stewart, who admitted to speaking with Metro about the meeting's public rulings on whether or not her motion was in order.

Hehr also requested that Metro reveal other sources referenced in the article.

"Our — my — question is in and around the material that's received from a member of a board who is brand new, who is trying to figure out policy, and who is working from policy, and who could easily go down the path of using the press in this manner," she said of Stewart. "I just don't feel that that's in the best interest of student learning right now in the Calgary Board of Education."

She added, "we literally know nothing about this having gone to the press, nothing, and you are reporting on behalf of the Calgary Board of Education."

Board chair Sheila Taylor was the only member of the trustee board not to take part in the conference call. But she did provide an email confirming to her fellow trustees Monday she'd been interviewed by Metro for the capital-plan story.

'Misspoke'

Feedback on wish list over, says trustee

A Calgary trustee stated in a Tuesday conference call the time for parent feedback on the public board's school-infrastructure wish list has come and gone.

Because trustee Amber Stewart's motion to publish the Calgary Board of Education's 2015-18 capital plan early was ruled out of order it will be released March 17, the day before it's voted through. Last year's version was 144 pages.

Both trustees Judy Hehr and Pamela King made reference in the call to Stewart acting out of order by discussing the ruling with Metro. But Hehr later declared she "misspoke" repeatedly and ruled herself "out of order." King then went into details of her reasoning for voting to pull the capital-plan motion.

"It's not a huge timeline, but this particular point in the process is not the time for the feedback," she said. "This is the document as it is. Any feedback that we would get isn't going to influence the actual decision of the capital plan."

But Jan Nicholson, one of many parents pushing for a middle school in Calgary's space-strapped West Springs community, said King's remarks gave her clear indication her group's efforts, at the school board level at least, have been in vain. JEREMY NOLAÏS/METRO

Culture Minister Heather Klimchuk announces a $5-million commitment from the province for a film studio in Calgary on Feb. 4. City councillors reaffirmed their $10-million commitment to the project on Wednesday. METRO FILE

Committee OKs cash for film studio

$10M commitment.
Project expected to double film productions
in five to seven years

ROBSON
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Film-production activity in Calgary is expected to double by as early as 2020 with the construction of a new, $23-million studio that just has one more tiny hurdle to clear at city council before all the funding is in place.

Members of the city's community and protective services committee voted unanimously in favour of going through with the city's end of the bargain, which involves a one-time, $10-million lump sum, on Wednesday.

The funds were actually set aside in 2009 by a previous council in an attempt to spur additional investment from other levels of government. That finally came last month, when the provincial government agreed to kick in $5 million.

The balance will come from $3.3 million in private funding and $4.5 million in borrowing by Calgary Economic Development (CED), which is overseeing the project.

CED has four potential sites in mind for the roughly 80,000-square-foot facility that would include two sound stages along with warehouse, production and support space.

The facility could host three productions simultaneously with each involving 125 to 150 crew members.

CED was conservative in its estimations, CEO Bruce Graham said, adding he's confident the project is "right-sized" for Calgary's film-production market.

"If anything it's probably undersized for the market," he added, when questioned by Coun. Ward Sutherland over some of the financial details.

Sutherland ultimately deemed the project "impressive" and said he has "no problem supporting it."

The studio is to open by summer 2015 and see the amount of film-production work in Calgary double within five to seven years, according to CED estimates.

CBE. High school's controversial Redmen athletics name and logo under review

Calgary's public school board says it's in the process of reviewing the athletics logo and name at a city high school that has been described as racist in other jurisdictions.

Western Canada High School's Redmen brand is similar to one that officials in Saskatoon voted to change this week at Bedford Road Collegiate.

"Conversations and consultations have begun and will take place with various groups representing the wider school community," the Calgary Board of Education said in a statement. "Approaches for the selection and implementation of a possible new name will honour the traditions of the school and the interests of all concerned stakeholders."

Western Canada High School's

The CBE did not offer a timeline for when a change to the Redmen logo could take place, but said other area directors and principals have also "been encouraged" to review their athletics names, mascots and logos to ensure they are respectful.

"The CBE is committed to supporting changes to ensure that schools and the CBE system respect and reflect the diversity of our students, our communities and our city, including First Nations, Métis and Inuit people," the statement said. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Social service providers. Calgary calls on province to boost funding for FCSS

City councillors called on the province Wednesday to boost its share of funding for a program that supports dozens of social service providers in Calgary.

A total of 77 agencies have requested $36.4 million for 2014 from Family and Community Support Services (FCSS) but only $31.4 million is available, according to a city report.

Despite population increases, the Alberta government's grant for the provincial-municipal initiative has remained constant for the past five years, the report adds.

By the numbers

FCSS funded 79 agencies and supported 122 programs that reached 90,078 unique individuals in Calgary last year.

Members of the city's community and protective services committee voted unanimously in favour of asking Mayor Naheed Nenshi to "formally request" that the province increase its funds.

School bus catches fire; children OK

Twelve children safely evacuated a school bus that caught fire in northeast Calgary Wednesday morning, according to the fire department.

Fire crews got a call about the vehicle blaze around 8:15 a.m. and, upon arrival at 1 Street and 24 Avenue NE, found the school bus "heavily involved in fire," according to a release.

The kids were taken to a nearby school and cared for until a replacement bus arrived. No injuries were reported. METRO

Charter school, province at odds over arts academy's future home

Differing timelines.

Province has sought more freedom for specialized schools

Alberta Education officials confirmed Wednesday a Calgary arts-focused charter academy will surrender its current location at Glenmeadows School despite a letter to the contrary from a principal.

Calgary Board of Education officials said Tuesday they intend to move students from the space-strapped Westgate School Spanish program to Glenmeadows and they retain the space from the Calgary Arts Academy. The academy is in line for a new youth campus to be developed on the Calgary Stampede grounds but will likely be required to relinquish one of two facilities it technically leases from the

Temporary measures

The Calgary Board of Education has stated it will put up Westgate's Spanish program students temporarily inside Viscount Bennett Centre if Glenmeadows school is not free in time for the 2015-16 school year.

CBE.

But academy principal Josh Van Beers stated in a letter to parents that such a move was "simply speculation."

"We are currently negotiating with Alberta Education and Alberta Infrastructure regarding the future Youth Campus and what that means for our current facilities," he wrote. "We believe as part of this expansion we may be required to relinquish one of our facilities to CBE but do not have any reason to believe this would occur before the 2016-17 school year, at the earliest."

Van Beers did not respond to a request for comment.

But Dan Powers, press secretary for Alberta Education Minister Jeff Johnson, issued a statement affirming the CBE's position.

"Yes, the CAA will return Glenmeadows to CBE upon completion of the new school on the Stampede grounds," he said.

The bizarre twist was just the latest in a series of ups and downs for a vocal group of parents from Westgate, which currently houses students divided equally across popular Spanish and French programs.

Plan to add creativity to city gets the green light

Part of plan's goal is to expand the reach of arts beyond downtown Calgary

ROBSON FLETCHER

Calgary Arts Development (CADA) laid out its plan to give city residents more opportunity to both consume and produce art Wednesday and, after some skepticism, members of city council unanimously endorsed it.

The document, titled Living a Creative Life, was put together with feedback gathered during 52 public consultations over 21 months and two online surveys, said CADA chair Dean Prodan, and it also includes a "Tactical Plan" to put its ideas into action.

Coun. Ward Sutherland questioned how the effectiveness of the plan would be measured, however.

"I'm not an artist, but I look at it from a business perspective as a councillor," he said during a city committee meeting. "When your strategy comes be-

CADA president and CEO Patti Pon said baseline data on key performance indicators would be gathered over the first year of the plan's implementation. "This is something we will continue to commit to year over year and be able to report back," Pon said.

Luke Azevedo of Calgary Economic Development said his organization supports the plan because it will help meet the city's "critical need" to attract and retain top talent.

"The best and brightest people look for more than just a house and a job," Azevedo said. "They look for a community with rich cultural experiences."

Plumber saves the day

Engagement ring saved from sink

It took five days and the work of a skilled plumber, but a Calgary bride-to-be has her $20,000 engagement ring back.

Arlene Chamulak says she was preoccupied with wedding plans last week when she accidentally flushed her ring down the toilet.

She says she was about to brush her teeth and meant to throw her gum out.

It wasn't until the next morning that she realized she had tossed her ring instead.

The expensive bauble was about 12 metres down the drain and it took days for a plumber to snag it and carefully pull it back up the sewer line. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Baseless' allegations

Alberta Party takes aim at education minister's expenses

Alberta's education minister is under fire over what are being described as expense irregularities.

The Alberta Party pointed out in a release Wednesday that Jeff Johnson's costs reveal "double-billing, lost receipts, taxpayers billed for options extras like (airplane) seat selection and hotel moves, and include a backdated claim for an expensive hotel room during the Calgary Stampede."

The Stampede expense, in particular, appears to reveal that Johnson spent $569 a night at Calgary's downtown Westin Hotel during a run of The Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth. But Dan Powers, Johnson's press secretary, said the allegations were "baseless" METRO

More relaxed pot laws may be in the pipeline

Criminal Code. As it now stands, anyone convicted of possessing small amounts of marijuana can be jailed for up to 5 years

The Conservative government is seriously considering more lenient marijuana laws that would allow police to ticket anyone caught with small amounts of pot instead of laying charges, Justice Minister Peter MacKay said Wednesday.

"We're not talking about decriminalization or legalization," MacKay said following the weekly Conservative caucus meeting on Parliament Hill.

"The Criminal Code would still be available to police, but we would look at options that would ... allow police to ticket those types of offences."

The federal Tories are considering more lenient pot laws, Justice Minister Peter MacKay said Wednesday. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is open to such an approach, he added.

MacKay has hinted in the past that such a move was under consideration. The country's police chiefs — as well as some Tory caucus members — have long called for ticketing people for pot possession instead of laying criminal charges.

But MacKay has also been among the Conservatives' fiercest critics of Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau's stance on the issue. Trudeau supports the legalization of marijuana, a position the Tories have mocked with gleeful abandon.

Provincial police overseeing Ford investigation

Ontario's provincial police are now overseeing an investigation into the activities of Toronto's Mayor Rob Ford, who has repeatedly attacked the legitimacy of the probe, Toronto's police Chief Bill Blair said Wednesday.

Ford's lawyer immediately denounced the oversight change, which leaves senior city investigators on the case, as "meaningless." In a letter to OPP Commissioner Chris Lewis, Blair laid out his reasons for asking his provincial colleagues for help.

"I am taking this step to avoid the distractions that have assumed such recent prominence," Blair said in the letter.

Ford, who has vociferously challenged the chief to arrest him, has branded the investigation political. He has publicly accused Blair of wasting tax money — with little result.

UN envoy threatened, driven from Crimea by armed men

Ukraine. Officials say Robert Serry was not kidnapped and is 'in good shape' after being confronted by men with weapons

A special UN envoy cut short his mission in Crimea on Wednesday after being threatened by 10 to 15 armed men and ordered to leave the region, UN officials said.

After a confrontation that began as he was leaving naval headquarters and continued at a café, envoy Robert Serry was driven to Simferopol airport by the men and was flying to Ukraine's capital to continue his fact-finding mission, the officials said.

General Ban Ki-moon asked Serry to go to Crimea as part of the fact-finding mission. Serry, who is currently the UN Mideast envoy, initially decided against going after consulting with authorities in the region. But UN Deputy Secretary-General Jan Eliasson said Serry later decided it was important to go, given the "dramatic circumstances."

Ukrainian officials reported earlier Wednesday that Serry had been kidnapped. But Eliasson denied that. He said Serry was threatened by the armed men, but was not abducted.

As world leaders meet in Paris, France sends Russia a warship

Ukraine. Country finds itself wedged between diplomatic efforts and its economic interests

A French-built warship designed to strengthen Russia's ability to deploy troops, tanks and helicopter gunships is getting its first test run Wednesday — just as Western powers are trying to rein in Russian President Vladimir Putin's military threat to Ukraine.

A spokesman for the shipbuilder says the Vladivostok helicopter carrier is setting sail from the French Atlantic port of Saint-Nazaire. A few hundred kilometres away in Paris, France's government is hosting American, Russian and other leading world diplomats Wednesday amid mounting tensions over Ukraine.

The warship is part of a $1.8-billion deal that marked the biggest-ever sale of NATO weaponry to Moscow, a deal that already raised eyebrows both within Russia's military circles and among France's Western allies in 2011.

France has criticized Russia's military incursion into Ukraine's Black Sea peninsula of Crimea, but says it has no plans to scrap the defence deal.

That's because France, like many of Russia's European trading partners, has found itself wedged between efforts to squeeze Russia diplomatically and its own economic interests. The French government's top priority is reviving its lacklustre economy and battling unemployment, and this deal underpins some 1,000 jobs.

The Vladivostok is on track to be delivered by the last quarter of this year, said spokesman Emmanuel Gaudet of DCNS, a state-backed naval shipbuilder manufacturing the warships along with South Korean-controlled shipbuilder STX.

A few Russian customers and military personnel are to visit the ship later this month, and a larger Russian delegation is expected in June, company officials said.

"But now with what's happening in Ukraine, perhaps they have other priorities — I don't know," said a CGT labour union delegate on the STX board. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chipotle: climate change could end your guacamole

Bland burritos. Chain could drop avocado spread off its menus

Climate change could knock your favourite fast foods off the menu.

Restaurant chain Chipotle is warning that it may have to temporarily stop serving guacamole or certain salsas in the event of extreme weather because of climate change.

"Increasing weather volatility or other long-term changes in global weather patterns, including any changes associated with global climate change, could have a significant impact on the price or availability of some of our ingredients," the restaurant said in its annual report released last month.

If climate change makes a key ingredient, such as avocados, too expensive, Chipotle says it may have to pull dishes like guacamole from the menu instead of paying the higher price for the raw ingredients.

Chipotle pointed to droughts in the U.S. over the past two years, which have driven up the price of beef, as an example of the type of extreme weather they're worried about.

Professor Sylvain Charlebois, at the University of Guelph's College of Management and Economics, says restaurants have good reason to worry. She, too, points to the ongoing drought in California, which is driving up the price of lettuce, strawberries and almonds. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

OPENING THE LID ON OPIOIDS

How did “a pain in the neck” come to describe an annoying person?

Because I have a pain in my neck keeping me home from work, and it’s much more than annoying. When the doctor asked me to rate the pain on a scale of one to 10, I said I’d need a spinal tap because this one goes to 11.

OK, I didn’t say that. What I said was: “OW makeitstop OW.”

An annoying person should be a rug burn. Or a hangnail. Or a paper cut. All pretty good insults, come to think of it.

A “pain in the neck”? That should be reserved for the Atilas and Stalins and Trumps. History’s greatest monsters.

This hurts so much that I’ve been watching Game of Thrones and after every decapitation I think, “Oh, that’d be sweet relief. Wish I was a traitor.”

The good news is there’s a silver lining — possibly lining the muscle in my neck, which would explain the throbbing. The doctor, seeing the brave way I was handling adversity, prescribed me a heavy-duty painkiller to provide relief. This means:

1) I get to take opioids.

2) I get to write about opioids.

3) If I write a lame column and make hack jokes about my doctor’s handwriting, I can blame the opioids.

John’s Guide To Prescription Painkillers

1) I joke around in this column, but you should never, ever abuse drugs that aren’t liquor, beer, wine, snuff, cigarettes, cigars, marijuana, hash or coffee. And even then, only several times a month.

2) Try to look suspicious when you ask for your painkillers. That way, when the pharmacist makes a phone call and you check out, you get to act offended.

3) To check the effectiveness of the security cap, be sure to leave your medication alone in your living room for long periods of time. Better safe than sorry.

4) Remember to look under the rim for your chance at free drugs or one of seven 2014 Dodge Durangos.

5) All the drug-safety guidelines I read remind you to turn on the lights when you take pills. This is to ensure that you’re not blind. If you are blind, call a doctor. Unless you’ve always been blind, in which case call a friend. They’d love to hear from you.

6) After a statistically significant sample of three Percocet, I can say the most interesting effect of opioids is that they don’t make you feel good; they just make you feel less. Part of me had expected to have a Yellow Submarine/Twin Peaks vision trip, but really it was more of a Big Bang Theory/American Trip. I didn’t feel anything, other than hoping it would be over in the next 22 minutes.

And that’s my guide to prescription painkillers. Now that I understand how powerful these drugs are, it makes sense to me that my doctor’s handwriting is so scribbly! Am I right? Sorry, sorry. Dave’s not here, man.

Here’s a plan. Keep doing what you’re doing and try not to be offended so easily. People will always have their own outlook on life, and no matter how skewed it is they have a right to believe in whatever they want. Further, they have a right to express their own incorrect, correct, or outrageous opinions. Why let someone’s rant or comment get you down? Why vent in anger on Facebook? Why even give it a second thought? We call this the “Me Generation” because the majority of people have developed a large sense of self-entitlement and people tend to take every insult and impunity to heart. disqus_z3lferpzn posted to metronews.ca

I disagree whole heartedly Disqus_z3lferpzn. I do agree that everyone is entitled to their opinion. But there comes a point when the opinions are just not acceptable and when offered freely and openly like this they are open to the ridicule they deserve. This is SEXISM pure and simple and is not to be tolerated. As any kind of prejudice should not be tolerated. TJE posted to metronews.ca

For you to say that “any kind of prejudice should not be tolerated” is in fact extremely prejudicial and I will not tolerate it. Everyone has prejudice in their thinking towards something whether people like you like it or not, or even realize it or not. Some people are stupid. Some cultures are backwards. Some religions are horrible. I have the right to make such a judgment based on thoughtful study of the facts. Rory Kyle Maxwell posted to metronews.ca

Ritika Anand and her husband Shailender Vyas have made a name for themselves in the Bollywood film industry. Now they're hoping to recreate that same success in Canada with their first full-length feature, Three Colours & a Canvas.

The movie, which screens at The Globe Cinema from March 13 to 20, was written by Vyas and tells the story of

"We had a pre-screening back in November and one of the audience members said to me that, '10 minutes into it, I forgot it was a movie; I thought it was real life,'" says Anand, who produced and stars in the movie.

Three Colours & a Canvas was shot in Calgary over 18 days in the summer of 2012, and Anand says she learned a lot about the differences • Dedicated to perfection. Three Colours & a Canvas producer and actor Ritika Anand says she and director Shailender Vyas spent two years looking for the perfect apartment to feature in the film. They finally found their location in the now-closed downtown heritage building the Cecil Hotel.

In 2003, she moved back to India to attend film school, where she met Vyas.

After appearing in several TV soap operas and Bollywood films in the country, she decided she wanted to create her own work with her future husband.

"There was kind of a higher calling telling me to get out of TV and maybe do movies," Anand recalls.

"I started auditioning for films and got a few. But very soon I started realizing that it was better if I started creating my own content.

"You're able to meet deadlines here. Everybody knows what time they're

Thou art a villain, Ms. Eva Green

300: Rise of an Empire. Actress seems to be having a little too much fun playing a psychopath

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Eva Green was really looking for an all-out villain to sink her teeth into, and she got that and more with the role of Artemisia in 300: Rise of an Empire.

Green sits down with Metro to discuss playing nuts, using sex as a weapon and the allure the mystical side of things.

You're playing more than just the typical villain in this.

Yes. I ... kill people, and I'm not very nice, yes. It's pure villainy. You know, lots of actors will go, "No, she has cracks, she's human." And of course you learn about her back-story and how she's been betrayed by her own countrymen and it has kind of hardened her heart big time. The only challenge is to find maybe some jubilation in this because yeah, she's just ... mental. She has no conscience and she can't tolerate incompetence, and anybody who doesn't follow her orders, just (snaps) "Off with his head!" You can't do that in real life, really.

You also have probably one of the more aggressive sex scenes in this.

I mean, it's more of a fight than a sex scene, really. It's so violent that it was kind of staged as a fight scene. I love when it's kind of clinical. Even a normal sex scene, actually, when they go, "You put your hand here and you here," "How do you do? We're going to have sex." And here it's two warriors having sex. They deal with violence every day, and this is how they do it. It's kind of S&M without the leather. It's not very romantic, let's say.

The Trailer Park Boys are back

Light up a smoke and pour yourself a rum and coke, folks! It's time to celebrate as Ricky, Julian and Bubbles make their way to Netflix with 10 new episodes later this year.

But first, the latest seasons will be added in Canada and the U.S., while Seasons 1-7 will be available for the first time in the U.K., Ireland, Netherlands, the Nordics and Latin America. It's been several years since the cameras have followed Ricky, Julian and Bubbles around the Sunnyvale Trailer Park, so there's a lot to catch up on: Ricky recently harvested an enormous weed crop which he has successfully hidden in the walls of his trailer. Julian has opened a bar and gym in his trailer and Bubbles is in the process of opening what he calls a 'Shed and Breakfast' business.

A judge has approved a substantial cut in the amount of child support that Beyoncé Knowles' father must pay because his income dropped after his superstar daughter fired him as her manager.

A ruling obtained by The Associated Press shows that a Los Angeles Superior Court judge cut the amount Mathew Knowles must pay to actress Alexandra Wright from $12,000 US a month to roughly $2,500 US a month. The payments are for a son Knowles fathered with Wright while he was still married to Beyoncé's mother.

Judge Scott Gordon's order is retroactive to February 2013. Although the singer's name is not mentioned in the ruling, it notes that her father's income has substantially fallen since she fired him in 2011. Mathew Knowles sought a reduction in his child support payments, and a hearing was held earlier this year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lohan's reality is still stranger than fiction

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

In the first look at Lindsay Lohan's OWN post-rehab reality show, her life looks fairly grim. She confesses that being stalked by paparazzi makes her feel like a prisoner "all the time." She looks alternately bored and panicked throughout. Handlers tattletale to Oprah that Lindsay is being unprofessional, skipping photo shoots and may be backsliding into addiction.

"This is exactly what everybody said was going to happen," Oprah sighs, "and I believed differently. She doesn't understand that this is your life."

We also glimpse a confrontation between the two, during which Oprah exhorts the OWN star to take her recovery seriously. "My truth is that I really do want you to win," says Oprah.

"No, it's not that I'm not ready to do that. I do want to," Lindsay insists.

"You need to cut the bulls—," Oprah returns.

Not defending Lindsay for leaving crews and co-workers hanging, but possibly her subconscious has realized that most newly recovering alcoholics would be better off anywhere but the set of a reality television show.

I'm sure that's not the case here, though. Oprah would never endanger someone's recovery just for the sake of OWN.

Katy Perry kissed another girl, and this time she wasn't really that into it. While visiting Australian talk show Sunrise this week, Perry recounted her close encounter with Miley Cyrus at the Bangerz singer's concert in Los Angeles. "I just walked up to her to give her, like, a friendly, girly kiss. You know, as girls do," Perry said. "And then she, like, tried to move her head and go deeper and I pulled away. God knows where that tongue has been."

From the runway, with love

Fall/Winter Fashion Month has taken four countries by storm once again. Here's a taste of what Metro's gurus of glam were lucky enough to see in the last leg of their high speed, high fashion city-hop. Until next season, style fanatics!

Roberto Cavalli (Milan)

Fire makes the perfect backdrop for Cavalli's flamboyant clothes. When a collection has heaps of dramatic fur on top of feathers on top of python on top of fringe, and tassels, and studs, and beading, the addition of a ring of flames and smoke seems only right and natural. He's cultivated an iconic look that may not set any agendas, but epitomizes Milanese fashion and its trademark carnal glamour. This is the drama we look for from Milano Moda Donna and he's delivered.

Major trends: Python, tassels, contrasting textures, blanket coats, gold.

Prada (Milan)

Prada has an unmistakable way of making the garish look intelligent, the street style bait not look so try-hard, and the commercially appealing look artful. That's why most of these pieces (I'm placing bets on the shearling jackets and sporty platform shoes), which would look ridiculous in anyone else's hands, will most likely fly off the shelves. Remember, Prada has consistently posted sales growth for several years now. Even if this collection is not her most exciting, she's still on a roll.

The major trends: Seventies-inspired prints and shapes, and shearling.

Rochas (Paris)

All of the clothes are stunning, right down to the densely beaded gloves. But too many in the second half of the show look heavy and fussy, like a wardrobe malfunction waiting to happen. That said, this collection falls right in line with the memo that clearly went out for autumn/winter '14: glamour and all of the decorative trappings that come with it, rules.

Major trends: Dense embellishments, outsized volume, experimentations with texture and longer fuller skirts.

Carven (Paris)

Guillaume Henry has referenced a decade other than the '60s this season and I appreciate that. His forties shapes and silhouettes have a film noir sensibility about them. Interestingly, this collection presents a more grown-up look than the girlier, whimsical fare. The strongest looks are the longest: straight, midi-length skirt suits and belted coat dresses and jackets that look like the stuff of Ingrid Bergman movies, with a modern twist.

Major trends: Longer midi skirts, shiny embellishments, shades of blue, and experiments with texture.

Sonia Rykiel (Paris)

The emphasis on knits and sense of humour present in a series of dresses emblazoned with 'Moi' are classic Rykiel, but there's a new contemporary, urban polish here as well. Best of all, everything looks so incredibly cosy and easy to wear. There are enormous Mongolian fur coats, relaxed, softly tailored trousers, oversized waffle knit sweaters and lithe, lean skirt suits, all in the warmest wools and cashmeres.

Major trends: Relaxed slouchy shapes, shaggy outerwear, textured three-dimensional surfaces and midi-length skirts.

DIY. For a deluxe take on outdoor living, turn a gazebo into a media room or amp up your grilling style

Vanilla Ice may have a cool name, but the rock-star-turned-home-improvement guru knows how to heat up a backyard. With a passion for modern features and luxurious amenities, Ice doesn't just renovate — he adds style and swagger.

With spring around the corner, consider spicing up your own backyard to make it worthy of its own music video.

Gazebos provide a refuge out of the sun and a relaxing place for friends and family to kick back. To take the traditional gazebo to the next level, install a projector to the ceiling and hang a screen at the back to enjoy late night movies or the big game. Once a television cable or DVD player is attached, invite the neighbours over for an extravagant block party.

Step up your grilling game

Kick that old barbecue to the curb and replace it with a new grill that features more burners, an infrared rotisserie burner and night lights for evening cooking. To spend less time inside and more time cooking with friends, recreate an entire outdoor kitchen with a mini-fridge, sink, prep area, and stove. Outdoor kitchens can be entirely customized or bought in pieces, making them easy to fit in virtually any space.

Raise the bar

For when a pool just isn't enough to beat the heat, a swim-up bar can keep the backyard cool. Swim-up bars are no longer just for resorts and are becoming more popular in residential pools. Not only do they have a vacation feel, they're practical for entertaining guests or just taking a break from pool sports. When planning the design, consider seating, sun angles, and storage for popular drink favourites and cups.

Light my fire

Don't stop enjoying the outdoors because of fall weather. An outdoor fireplace can add warmth and light to dark, chilly evenings. While smaller, temporary fireplaces are great for flexibility, built in brick or stone fireplaces provide first-class elegance. They're great for intimate evenings together or a classic camp fire singalong. Check with local authorities before beginning, as some areas prohibit decorative fires.

Outdoor kitchens can be customized to fit almost any space. ISTOCK

Pizza and nutrition go together

Red Pepper and Goat Cheese Pizza. March is Nutrition Month but healthy doesn't mean sacrificing flavour

Pizza is a fantastic meal to make on the fly, especially if you have a flatbread or ready-made pizza crust. It's got a big surface, with lots of room for nutrient-filled vegetables.

In this easy-to-make recipe, creamy goat cheese balances the bright and fresh flavours of red pepper, onion and tomato. Combined with mozzarella (a pizza classic), olives and basil, it's a healthy meal that's ready in about 20 minutes.

Feel free to experiment with whatever you might have in the fridge: feta is a welcome substitute for goat cheese; zucchini and mushrooms pair nicely too. Chicken with spinach, red peppers and cheese is another dietitian-approved combo that

Using a baking stone is a great way to give your pizza a crusty finish. Place the pizza stone in a cool oven, turn on the oven and preheat the stone for about 45 minutes before cooking the pizza.

1. Preheat oven to 400 F (200 C) if using flatbread or 450 F (230 C) if using pizza dough

2. Place flatbread on baking sheet. Alternatively, if using pizza dough, spread out dough on lightly greased pizza pan to make a 12-inch (30 cm) circle.

Easily the biggest news was that the most notable name on the list, two-time 30-goal scorer Mike Cammalleri, did not end up getting moved.

Jayhawks swoop in for Big 12 championship

NCAA basketball. Black perfect from the floor, Wiggins chips in nine points in Kansas win

Tarik Black pulled a Big 12 championship T-shirt over his broad shoulders, slipped a title hat on his head, and then gave Andrew Wiggins and the rest of his teammates a hug.

Black matched the school record for field-goal attempts without a miss held by C.J. Giles (2005) and Mark Randall (1990). The only shots he missed came at the free throw line.

Wiggins, the Vaughan, Ont., native also likely playing in his final home game, added nine points for the Jayhawks (23-7, 14-3 Big 12). Naadir Tharpe came off the bench to contribute 16 points and five assists and Perry Ellis finished with 13 points and five rebounds.

Paralympic Games. Red, white and gold all over

Wheelchair curler Sonja Gaudet has been named as Canada's flag-bearer for the opening ceremony of the Sochi Paralympic Games.

The 47-year-old Gaudet is the most decorated wheelchair curler in history, having won gold medals at both the 2006 and 2010 Paralympics.

She also has three world championships to her name.

A native of North Vancouver, B.C., Gaudet will lead a Canadian contingent of 54 athletes into the Fisht Olympic Stadium on Friday night.

"It carries a lot of purpose for me," Gaudet said at Wednesday's announcement. "Of course we're here to compete as athletes with a physical disability at the highest level — that's what the Paralympic Games are."

"It sends a big global message as well about looking past the wheelchair, looking past the visual impairment, looking past the missing limb and really focusing on the person and focusing on what's there."

Gaudet is the second on the Canadian squad to skip Jim Armstrong, who said his teammate is deserving of the honour.

is see her work very hard," said Armstrong, who won gold at the 2010 Vancouver Paralympics with Gaudet. "Her skills have just continued to improve and it has not come easy. She has set a work ethic that any coach would be proud of."

Canada made the podium 19 times in Vancouver and has set a goal of finishing top-three in gold medals in Sochi.

The Winter Paralympics include wheelchair curling, sledge hockey, para-Nordic skiing and biathlon, para-alpine skiing and para-snowboard.

Canada plays two wheelchair curling games on Saturday morning, including a 10:30 a.m. MST start against Britain.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Family matters will take up most of your time today but don't think that means you cannot have fun. Loved ones are hoping you will suggest a trip you can all enjoy together.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You know what you want and you know how and where to get it, so all you have to do now is reach out your hand and take it. Sounds easy, doesn't it? Well that's because it is. Make things happen!

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Good news about your finances is on its way and by the end of the week you will be wondering why and how you allowed yourself to get so worked up about a simple thing like money. Treat yourself — you deserve it.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You have been a bit to cautious of late but now that Jupiter is moving in your favour again you will find the confidence to take a few risks. If you have not done it already, you should be planning your next adventure.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You will no doubt wonder what the catch is when someone in a position of authority offers you something you have long desired, but there is no need to be suspicious.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You want to get things done, but because not everyone is as motivated as you it may take effort to get others to help you. No, you can't go it alone. There is too much to do.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You will win over even the most reluctant of people today. Create a vision of what it is you intend to achieve and let them see that they can share in the spoils, but they have got to back you — now.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Don't give in today, especially with co-workers who will take advantage of you if you don't stand up for yourself. You may want to help but you should not be doing everything.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Some people seem to be under the impression that they can snap their fingers and you will come running. But with Jupiter, your ruler, on great form today they are in for a rude awakening.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You've got a nagging feeling that you could have done more to make a success of a relationship. Maybe you're right but that was then and this is now. Stop looking back.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Jupiter moves in your favour today, making it easy to break free of habits that are holding you back. Remember: the best way to get rid of a habit is to replace it with a better one that challenges you.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

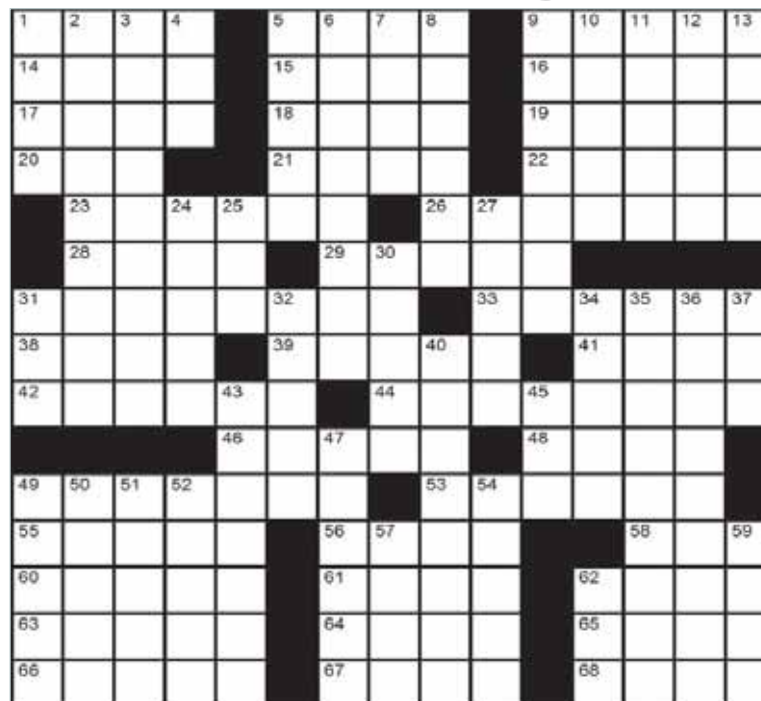

You will get a burst of energy today, enabling you to finish something you started a long time ago. Some people believe that Pisceans are lazy. It's time to prove them wrong.
